The installation process is pretty fast, and users won't have to do anything more than extract the contents of the file into their Windows installations.

Prevalence of pain in patients with knee osteoarthritis according to the administration of NSAIDs with anti-inflammatory activity in Spain: results from the SEGRAM cohort. In the present study, we analyzed the prevalence of pain and analgesic consumption in patients with knee osteoarthritis (OA). The Eurobarometer 67.3 (2006) was analyzed to analyze the prevalence of pain and analgesic consumption. We analyzed the data from the Spanish Health Survey of the SEGRAM cohort (1.148 non-institutionalized adults), with prevalence of pain in the knee in the last month (PGIC, grade 4) in 46.8%. Of these patients, 29.7% reported pain intensity, and 13.6% of patients with pain used any kind of analgesic medication. Men had a significantly higher prevalence of pain in the last month (64.9% vs. 55.6%, $P = 0.007$). Patients with OA had significantly more pain than non-osteoarthritis patients (70.4% vs. 29.6%, $P < 0.001$). Patients with OA used significantly more days of oral analgesics, and in patients with a higher pain in the last month, regardless of the number of days or the intensity of pain. The pain prevalence was different between men and women, and between patients with and without arthritis. More than one-quarter of patients with knee OA reported pain
